Thriller/Crime. 103 pages

LOGLINE:

After murdering their shared playboy father, two look-alike half-sisters embark on a cold-blooded killing spree to eliminate the "prolific" sperm donors they believe are polluting the gene pool.

SUMMARY:

A disillusioned young teacher struggles to find her footing and fit in at her new school. Paralyzed by a sudden career crisis and realizing that education may not be her true calling, she books a vacation to regroup and clear her mind. While enjoying a night out on the town, she crosses paths with an enigmatic stranger who looks exactly like her and seems unusually eager to form a close friendship.

A shocking twist brings them together permanently when they run their DNA through a database. They discover they are biological half-sisters sharing the exact same sperm donor father. Even more unsettling, they uncover a massive medical scandal: their biological father used his clinic access to father an unnaturally high number of donor children. Horrified by the ethics of his actions and fueled by a shared sense of abandonment, the two lookalikes abandon their normal lives. The half-sisters forge a dark alliance and embark on a dangerous, calculated revenge mission to destroy him and dismantle other predatory doctors involved in illicit fertility clinic fraud.
