

Personalities to Avoid

By. Valerie Hockert

WGAW# 2271709

Drama/Romance 90 pages

LOGLINE:

A cynical relationship expert must navigate a gauntlet of dating disasters—from "commitment creeps" to "credit criminals"—only to realize she might be the one "personality type" she's been warning everyone about.

SUMMARY:

Navigating the modern singles dating world can feel like walking through a minefield, but finding love does not have to be painful. This funny dating book overview delivers a collection of short, humorous stories highlighting the absolute worst disastrous date experiences. Based entirely on real-life events, these entertaining cautionary tales serve a vital educational purpose. They clearly illustrate healthy relationship expectations—core principles that many people searching for a long-term commitment seem to have completely forgotten. Functioning as a comical how-to dating guide, the book helps readers identify toxic behavioral patterns regardless of whether they are dating men or women. The text breaks down specific, recognizable toxic archetypes that ruin romance. Readers will learn to spot dangerous personality types, including the emotionally unavailable no-commitment creep, the overly anxious shaky sap, the boundary-crossing family first enabler, and the poor listener labeled the lazy ear. From the overbearing reach and touch to the chaotic adventure ape, the arrogant power player, and the emotionally trapped imprisoned imp, no bad behavior is spared. The guide wraps up with financial and lifestyle red flags, breaking down the habits of the gambling gent, the thrill-seeking risky rebel, and the financially deceitful credit criminal so you can protect your heart and find a lasting relationship.